

PLAN CAMPAIGN FOR THE STATE

Secretary Of War Taft Will Speak In Madison On October Fifth Next.

LENROOT VOLUNTEERED TO HELP

La Fayette Will Be Heard From---Bryan Coming To The State For The Democrats To Be Glad About.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison, Wis., Sept. 27.—Secretary of War Taft will open the republican campaign in Wisconsin October 5, with a speech in the university gymnasium at Madison. This is the conclusion arrived at yesterday at a meeting of the republican state candidates in the basement of the capitol. The nominees met with the chairman of the state central committee to talk over the plans for the campaign. Governor Davidson produced a letter from the national republican congressional campaign committee, proposing that Secretary of War Taft speak in Madison October 5. There was some suggestion that the address be changed from Madison to Milwaukee and that the occasion be made the opening of the campaign in Wisconsin, but the proposal of the national committee will hardly be changed.

Three Weeks.

Senator La Follette allowed it to be known yesterday that he is planning to devote about three weeks to campaigning in Wisconsin for the election of the republican state ticket. He will (perhaps) make some other announcement later, but perhaps not until his first campaign speech in Wisconsin. However, it is known that he is pleased with the platform adopted by the republican state convention of Tuesday, and looks upon it as a strong set of declarations, making no departure from the movement for reform in this state which was pressed forward by him.

All is Harmony.

In viewing the situation as left by the convention of republican nominees for state and legislative offices, it is difficult to discern a single indication of lack of harmony in favor of the election of the entire state ticket. This is also true with respect to the congressional nominations generally, although there are still heard some things calculated to warn the supporters of Congressman Babcock that they will have to work for their victory in the third district. Judge D. O. Mahoney of Viroqua, who was defeated by Babcock for the republican nomination, said that he would demand a recount of the votes of the primary election and that he intended to show that many democrats voted for Babcock as the republican candidate, instead of being counted only for Babcock as a candidate for the democratic nomination, as was directed to be done in a recent official opinion of the attorney general.

Details Planned.

Aside from the information that Secretary of War Taft would come to Wisconsin early in October, the meetings of the state central committee and of the nominees for state office developed nothing other than details of the plan of campaign. As soon as his mission of peace in Cuba is accomplished, which is expected to be in a few days, Secretary Taft will make a speaking tour under the management of the national republican congressional campaign committee, the tour intended to be in the interests of the congressional candidates. The committee wrote to Governor Davidson asking if a speech by Secretary Taft in Madison on October 5, said the governor, as he led the way could be arranged without conflicting into the private office.

FREE SEED IS DOOMED SURELY

PENNSYLVANIA REPRESENTATIVE NOW AGAINST IT.

SOME OWNERSHIP GOSSIP

Bryan's Advocacy of Railroad Proprietary Gains Favor in the Back Woods.

(By William Wolff Smith.)

Washington, D. C., September 26.—(Special Correspondence.)—The anti-free-seed sentiment among farmers of Pennsylvania is most pronounced, judging from the resolutions which are being adopted by the different granges and other organizations of farmers in that state and forwarded to Washington for presentation to Congress next session. Many of the members of congress from Pennsylvania favor the annual appropriation under which they distribute packages of turnip and radish seed, but their constituents do not appear to appreciate these microscopic gifts from a generous government. Pennsylvania furnished far more "free seed" votes than any other northern state. Representatives Bancroft, Deemer, Graham, Huff, Klue, LaFane, Moon, Palmer, Samuel and Schmeebell all casting their votes for free radish and pumpkin seed. Opinion was about equally divided in the Keystone delegation, however, for Representatives Acheson, Adams, Bates, Burke, Butler, Cooper, Dalgell, McCreary and Wagner all voted against the appropriation. The other members from Pennsylvania did not vote. A resolution adopted by Wygobee Grange, a few days ago, is a sample of the resolutions being adopted by organizations of farmers in Pennsylvania. It reads:

"Be it hereby resolved, that Wygobee Grange, No. 1306, unanimously condemns the practice of free seed distribution by the Department of Agriculture, and hereby demands that the law be repealed. We believe the sentiment expressed in this resolution represents the sentiment of the farmers of Northern Chester county."

The resolution is signed by the Master and Secretary of the Grange and the members of a special committee which took the sense of the farmers of that community. Hundreds of such resolutions will be presented to Congress next December, and it is believed that body will at last put an end to this expensive farce.

The resolution has already deeply embroiled the path of government ownership. We are spending several hundred millions, no one knows how many, in digging a ditch in foreign clime for the benefit of foreign ship owners, for we have no merchant marine of our own. We expect to operate that canal at a profit. If we can construct and operate canals, why not railroads? Do not think I am advocating government ownership. I think Bryan sprung this on the public ten or twenty years ahead of the proper time and it will likely cost him the presidency. But I have been talking with others not in or connected with Wall street, and I know the idea of municipal and government ownership is growing. I asked my friend, Col. E. A. Edwards, the able secretary of the Democratic Congressional Committee, if he found Bryan's attitude was hurting the democratic chances. "Not a bit," was the reply, emphatically. "We may lose a few votes in Wall street, where we don't get enough to count anyway, but the fellow in the backwoods who has the votes believes in Bryan, and Bryan does." In some respects I am inclined to think Colonel Edwards is right; for I know that the virus is spreading. We have long been taught to believe that the railroads are our dearest foes; that the system of railroads has really been the mother of trusts, instead of the tariff, which was accused by Havemeyer of giving them birth. Suppose that in the attempt to educate the people to a realization of their wrongs sufficiently to ensure the enactment of the new interstate commerce law, we have over-shot the mark, what then? Not, always does a popular movement stop when those who started it cry "halt."

GREETINGS EXTENDED.

Two JANESEVILLE divines of different denominations appeared before the conference and extended greetings. Rev. J. W. Laughlin of the Presbyterian church spoke for the Wisconsin Synod as newly elected moderator of the Madison Presbytery. Rev. R. M. Vaughan, representing the JANESEVILLE Baptist church. The latter after congratulating the Methodists on their success, etc., voiced the sentiment of the Baptist society toward joint work with the Methodists, offering to meet them halfway. In response to this, Bishop McCabe remarked that the doctrines of Methodism and structure of the church were so different that it was impossible to work together as one organization; that they enjoy having union services and union revival meetings; but that they do not desire to unite with others in church government.

ON RETIRED LIST.

Applications for changes of connections with the conference were made by several ministers and the matter referred to the proper committee, as follows: Rev. J. M. Woodward, to supernumerary; Rev. Samuel Lugg, to supernumerary list; Rev. W. W. Warner, from supernumerary to supernumerary list; Rev. W. D. Cox, to supernumerary; E. O. Bullock, to supernumerary; A. W. HORSES RESCUED BY FIRE DEPARTMENT

"LIFE SAVERS" CALLED UPON TO SAVE TEAM IN THE MONTEREY RACEWAY THIS MORNING.

This morning a man named Richards backed a team hauling a tumbler wagon into the race near the Woolen Mills to fit it more easily with water. The swift current caught the cart and owing to its buoyancy it was swept down into the raceway dragging the horses with them. Being unable to drag the horses out the city fire department was notified and the hook and ladder went to the scene and after hard work succeeded in liberating the thoroughly exhausted horses and saving their lives. It was a narrow escape and the efficiency of the fire department in the life saving capacity is again brought into prominence.

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN
Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1894, by HARPER & BROTHERS

"Yes," answered Jocelyn, "quietly, 'Mr. Oscar went up and rescued him. My brother heard yesterday that the relief had been effected."

Millicent smiled again in her light-hearted way.

"That is all right," she said. "What a good thing we did not know! Just think, auntie dear, what a lot of anxiety we have been spared!"

"In the height of the season, too!" said Jocelyn.

"Yes," replied Millicent, rather doubtfully.

Lady Cantourne was puzzled. There was something going on which she did not understand. Within the sound of the pleasant conversation there was the clink of the foil; behind the polite smile there was the gleam of steel.

She was rather relieved to turn at this moment and see Sir John Meredith entering the room with his usual courtly bow. He always entered her drawing room like that. Ah, that little secret of a mutual respect! Some people who are very young now will wish, before they have grown old, that they had known it.

He shook hands with Lady Cantourne and with Millicent. Then he stood with a deferential half-bow, waiting for the introduction to the girl who was young enough to be his daughter—almost to be his granddaughter. There was something pathetic and yet proud in this old man's uncomprising adherence to the lessons of his youth.

"Sir John Meredith—Miss Gordon."

The beginning—the thin end of the wedge, as the homely saying has it—the end which we introduce almost every day of our lives, little suspecting to what it may broaden out.

"I had the pleasure of seeing you last night," said Sir John at once, "at Lady Fitzmannerlug's evening party, or 'at home,' I believe, we call them nowadays. Some of the guests read the invitation too much at a time. They were so much at home that I, fearing to intrude, left rather early."

He was beginning to wonder why he had been invited—why almost commanded—to come, by an impulsive little note. And, of late, whenever Sir John began to wonder he began also to feel odd.

At that moment the door opened and there entered a complex odor of hair-wash and perfume—a collar which must have been nearly related to a cuff, and a pair of tight patent leather boots, all attached to and somewhat intruding a young man.

"Ah, my dear Mr. Grubb," said Lady Cantourne, "how good of you to call so soon. You will have some tea. Millicent, give Mr. Grubb some tea."

Then Lady Cantourne went to the conservatory and left Sir John and Jocelyn at the end of the long room together. There is nothing like a woman's instinct. Jocelyn spoke at once.

"Lady Cantourne," she said, "kindly asked me to meet you today on purpose. I live at Loango; I know your son, Mr. Meredith, and we thought you might like to hear about him and about Loango."

"Yes," he said, with a strange hesitation, "yes, you are kind. Of course I am interested. I wonder, he went on with a sudden change of manner—I wonder how much you know."

"I know," she answered, "that you have had a difference of opinion—but no one else knows! You must not think that Mr. Meredith has spoken of his private affairs to any one else. The circumstances were exceptional, and Mr. Meredith thought that it was due to me to give me an explanation."

Sir John looked a little puzzled, and Jocelyn went on rather hastily to explain:

"My brother and Mr. Meredith were at Eton together. They met somewhere up the coast and my brother asked Mr. Meredith to come and stay. It happened that Maurice was away when Mr. Meredith arrived, and I did not know who he was, so he explained."

"Indeed," said Sir John; "and you and your brother have been kind to my boy. And I dare say," he added, with a somewhat lame attempt at cynicism, "that you have heard no good of me?"

But Jocelyn would have none of that. She was no child to be banished by sarcasm, but a woman, completed and perfected by her love.

"Excuse me," she said sharply, "but that is not the truth, and you know it. You know as well as I do that your son would never say a word against you."

Sir John was looking at her keenly, his hard blue eyes like steel between the lashed lids.

"You disquiet me," he said. "I have a sort of feeling that you have bad news to tell me."

"No," she answered, "not exactly. But it seems to me that no one realizes what he is doing out in Africa—what risks he is running."

"Tell me," he said, drawing in his chair. "I will not interrupt you. Tell me all you know from beginning to end. I am naturally somewhat interested."

So Jocelyn told him. And what she said was only a recapitulation of facts known to such as have followed these pages to this point. Suddenly he broke into the narrative. He saw, keen old wolding that he was, a discrepancy.

"But," he said, "there was no one in Loango connected with the scheme who—he paused, touching her sleeve—

Two Great Quaker Players

Kid Gleason of the Nationals and Davis of the Athletics.

Record of the Famous Old Second Baseman, Once a Patcher.

George (Kid) Gleason, second baseman of the Philadelphia National League club and a famous veteran player, was born Oct. 26, 1866, at Camden, N. J., where he commenced his baseball career as the pitcher of amateur teams. His first professional entry was with a boy, Anger—who sent the telegram home to young Oscar—the telegram calling him out to Jack's relief?

"Oh," she explained, "I did. My brother was away, so there was no one else to do it, you see."

And perhaps he did.

Sir John took his leave. He bowed over Jocelyn's hand, and Millicent, watching them keenly, could see nothing—no gleam of mutual understanding in the politely smiling eyes.

"Perhaps," he said, "I may have the pleasure of meeting you again."

"I am afraid it is doubtful," she answered, with something that sounded singularly like exultation in her voice. "We are going back to Africa almost at once."

And she also, took her leave of Lady Cantourne.

One afternoon Joseph had his wish. Moreover, he had it given to him even as he desired, which does not usually happen. We are given a part, or the whole, so distorted, that we fail to recognize it.

Joseph looked up from his work and saw Jocelyn coming into the bungalow garden.

He went out to meet her, putting on his coat as he went.

"How is Mr. Meredith?" she asked him once. Her eyes were very bright and there was a sort of breathlessness in her manner which Joseph did not understand.

"He is a bit better, miss, thank you kindly. But he don't make the progress I should like. It's the weakness that follows the malady attack that the doctor has to fight against."

"Where is he?" asked Jocelyn.

"Well, miss, at the moment he is in the drawing room. We bring him down there for the change of air in the afternoon. Likely as not, he's asleep."

And presently Jack Meredith, lying comfortably somnolent on the outskirts of life, heard light footsteps, but hardly headed them. He knew that some one came into the room and stood silently by his couch for some seconds. He lazily unclosed his eyelids for a moment, not in order to see who was there, but with a glint of intimating that he was not asleep. But he was not wholly conscious. To men accustomed to an active, energetic life a long illness is nothing but a period of complete rest. In his more active moments Jack Meredith sometimes thought that this rest of his was extending into a dangerously long period, but he was too weak to feel anxiety about anything.

Jocelyn moved away and busied her noiselessly with one or two of those small duties of the sickroom which women see and men ignore. But she could not keep away. She came back and stood over him with a silent sense of possession which made that moment one of the happiest of her life. She remembered it in after years, and the complex feelings of utter happiness and complete misery that filled it.

At last a fluttering moth gave the excuse her heart longed for, and her fingers rested for a moment, light as the moth itself, upon his hair. There was something in the touch which made him open his eyes uncomprehending at first, and then filled with a sudden life.

"All," he said, "you—you at last!" He took her hand in both of his. He was weakened by illness and a great fatigue. Perhaps he was off his guard or only half awake.

HOME ENDORSEMENT.

Hundreds of Janesville Citizens Can Tell You All About It.

Home endorsement, the public expression of Janesville people, should evidence beyond dispute for every Janesville reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in far-away places. Read the following:

Mrs. B. F. Jones, of 157 Western Ave., Janesville, Wis., says: "I was not free from attacks of backache for a single day during several years past, and used so many remedies without getting any relief that I came to the conclusion that nothing would help me and stopped trying. I went about all bent over, could not straighten up at all and had a dull pain across the loins and a feeling of weakness that made it hard for me even to rise from a chair. At night, I would awaken with the feeling that a great weight was breaking my back, and anyone who has suffered from kidney trouble will know what torture I endured. Finally, I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and wondered if there was really any use of trying another remedy, but seeing them recommended by people in Janesville I got a box at the People's Drug Store and began using them. Gradually I regained strength and the pains and aches finally disappeared. Since I completed the treatment I have not had an attack of backache nor any symptom of kidney trouble, and I believe Doan's Kidney Pills worthy of all the praise that I can give them."

Dan Patch Paces Mile In 1:55

"Twin" Mike Still Has Hopes of Winning the Championship.

He Was Twice Knocked Out by Baltimorean Posts $1,000 Forfeit.

Prominent among the many challengers of Champion Joe Gans is Mike ("Twin") Sullivan, the lad who has twice been defeated by the Baltimorean. But Sullivan claims to have improved greatly since his last bout with Gans.

Sullivan is an ambitious fellow and full of courage. Although he has been twice knocked out by Gans, he insists on another dose of the sleep, producing Dan Patch broke the world's pacing record at the state fair grounds, St. Paul, Minn., recently, going the mile in 1:55. His former record was 1:55. Dan Patch has broken the record for the mile with clocklike regularity ever since his first successful attempt three years ago.

Dan Patch is a son of Joe Patchen and Zelie, and is owned by M. W. Savage, who purchased him from M. E. Sturgis, for $60,000, in 1902. Three years later Savage refused an offer of $120,000 for the stallion, made by Sturgis, who represented a New York syndicate.

In the recent race the big brown horse finished strong, many unofficial watches catching the time a quarter of a second faster than the judges' announcement. As the time was hung up the pacer was covered with a floral blanket.

The mile was made with a runner in front and a dust shield and another runner at the hip.

A few days previous, at Galesburg, Ill., Dan Patch paced a sensational mile at the opening of the trotting meet. 1:57 1/2 was the time.

He was driven by his trainer, Harry, and Charles Dean drove the pacemaker with the wind shield, while another pacemaker brought up on the outside.

MYSTERY IN HOTEL MURDER

BEAUTIFUL WOMAN FOUND DEAD AT MINNEAPOLIS.

Bullet Wound in Top of Head Supposed to Have Been Inflicted by Man, Who Escapes.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 27.—Minneapolis police are confronted by another mysterious murder, which promises to develop as many sensations as did that of Mille Ellissón, who was murdered at the National hotel, a few months ago.

At five o'clock Wednesday afternoon attendants at the Glenwood hotel on Hennepin avenue, broke into a room which had been occupied by a couple who registered on Tuesday as Fred Tyler and wife, and found on the bed the dead body of a beautiful young woman. Blood was oozing from a wound in the top of the head, and apparently she had been dead for several hours. It is said that the man who accompanied her was seen leaving the hotel early in the day, but no one can give an accurate description of him.

The woman apparently was of the better class, her clothing being of elegant material and fashionable model and her face and hands giving evidence of refinement. Nothing was found to positively identify her identity, it being the police theory that the couple registered under assumed names. Her shoes bore the mark of a fashionable St. Paul shop and her linen was marked "L. T." and bore the shop mark of a St. Paul laundry.

The body was at once taken to the morgue, where an autopsy was held. It was found that death was caused by a bullet which had been fired into the top of her head. A possible motive for the crime was developed by the autopsy, which disclosed that the woman was enceinte.

The Twelfth Infantry, which is the regular garrison at Governor's Island, is now on the way from Mount Gretna to New York, the journey being made on foot. It is expected that the men will arrive about Oct. 1.

With the break-up of this camp a very strong movement has arisen in favor of making Mt. Gretna a permanent military post. By some curious turn of events, the state of Pennsylvania has never been awarded a single United States army post, and this in spite of the fact that Pennsylvania keeps ready for the country's service a force of 9,820 militia, more than any other state but New York.

In New York the government has established twelve garrisoned forts. They are Fort Hamilton, Governor's Island, Madison Barracks at Sackett Harbor, Fort Niagara, Fort Ontario

PLAN TO MAKE NEW ARMY POST OF MT. GRETNNA, PA.

It Has Not A One Yet, While New York State Has Twelve--All Other Eastern States Have Posts... Mt. Gretna Has Proven Ideal Place.

New York, Sept. 27.—Gen. Frederick D. Grant, who was in command of the army concentration camp at Mount Gretna, Pa., this summer, has returned here and resumed the direction of affairs of the department of the east from the department headquarters on Governor's Island. Gen. Grant was enthusiastic over the results of the encampment, and believes that it will be regular event hereafter.

The troops at Mount Gretna, which included practically all of the infantry and cavalry in the department of the east, in addition to engineers and signal corps detachments, said Gen. Grant, "behaved excellently all summer, and I believe never before has the enlisted personnel of the regular army been so high as now. There was not a single case of serious sickness in the camp all summer, and it has been, I believe, that the problem of a healthy, permanent camp has been solved.

"We had very little trouble as a result of whisky, which is at the bottom of most of the trouble in the army, and I am happy to say that desertions were also few and far between.

Our experiments with automobiles were interesting. The touring car did well, but the auto truck did not. I do not think it will supplant the mule.

The Twelfth Infantry, which is the regular garrison at Governor's Island, is now on the way from Mount Gretna to New York, the journey being made on foot. It is expected that the men will arrive about Oct. 1.

With the break-up of this camp a very strong movement has arisen in favor of making Mt. Gretna a permanent military post. By some curious turn of events, the state of Pennsylvania has never been awarded a single United States army post, and this in spite of the fact that Pennsylvania keeps ready for the country's service a force of 9,820 militia, more than any other state but New York.

In New York the government has established twelve garrisoned forts. They are Fort Hamilton, Governor's Island, Madison Barracks at Sackett Harbor, Fort Niagara, Fort Ontario and Oswego, Fort Porter at Buffalo, Fort Schuyler at Westchester, Fort Slocum at New Rochelle, Plattsburgh Barracks, Fort Terry, Fort Totten near Hell Gate, Fort Wadsworth on Staten Island, Fort Wood on Bedloe's Island, Fort H. G. Wright on Fisher's Island.

Rhode Island, smallest of the states, has three well garrisoned forts. New Jersey has two, one at Sandy Hook and the other at Salem. All the New England states, Maryland, Virginia and Delaware, all of which are in the department of the east, have their garrisons. Porto Rico even has two.

But Pennsylvania and West Virginia, where on account of the large coal mining and iron mining population, the calls for troops have been more frequent than anywhere else, have been slighted.

It is as it should be, the citizens of Pennsylvania say, that New York, the principal port of the country, should be well fortified. It is to the credit of the war department that New York is as perfectly guarded as any city of the world. It seems proper, too, that the states with their coast line exposed to the Atlantic should have ample fortifications. But why, when there are about forty-five garrisoned forts in the department of the east, should Pennsylvania, the second state of the Union, have none at all?

When the military camp for the department of the east was to be established, Mt. Gretna, Pa., by reason of its physical advantages, was chosen as the site. The state of Pennsylvania withdrew her soldiers and sent them elsewhere, some of them to Gettysburg, and some to other points for the annual encampments, giving the government full sway at Mt. Gretna.

Other states—Vermont, New York, West Virginia, Connecticut, Maryland and New Jersey, and the District of Columbia, took advantage of the government's offer to encamp their militia there, but Pennsylvania sent none of her militia to her own campground as long as the government wanted the use of it.

It is likely that the movement for the establishment of a permanent post at Mt. Gretna will make itself very strongly felt at the next session of congress.
